of School. Band Camp, Senior Picnic,

The stylized Finis on the cover and division pages of this book signifies reflections of the school year 1966-67. But to the seniors who have now left FHS, to reflect is to remember. Remember what? Those classmates pictured in this volume. The halls and classrooms. The games, dances, plays, assemblies, and the everyday activity of the school. But in addition to those reflections that appear as memories, are the physical reflections we notice in the architecture of the buildings. We see our own image on each blue-tinted window as we walk down the breezeway.

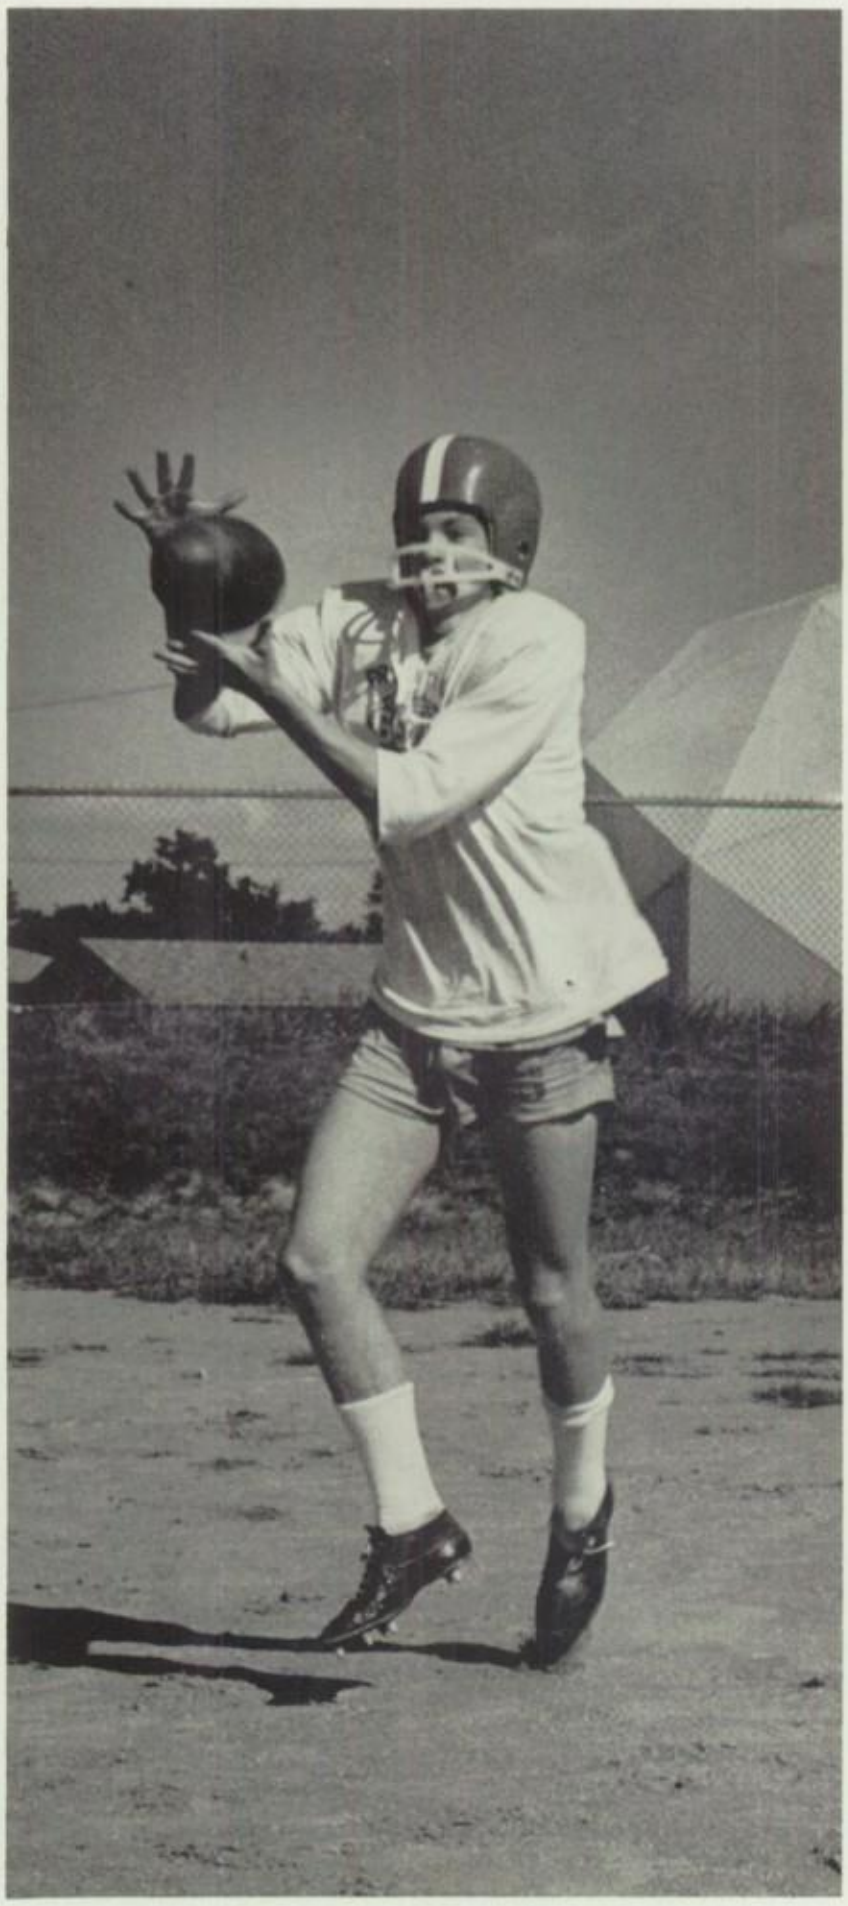
Calesthenics were a part of every football practice.

Principal's Reception, All Crowd into



New men teachers become acquainted at principal's reception.

And though we see only ourselves, we know we are being watched by many others. We see the gleaming stainless steel of the kitchen equipment as we go through the lunch line. The reflection of each basketball player is only a colorful blur on the highly polished floor of the gym as he attempts a goal.

This year the Finis staff has decided to organize its book in a different way. This volume is arranged in chronological order beginning with the activities that took place even before the year started and continues throughout the year as events take place. This allows you to look back and reflect upon events in the order in which they occurred.

But a more lasting reflection of each teacher is created in the student whom the teacher has affected. We know this is a reflection of the best ideals. We, as seniors, hope only that those who remain after we are gone will reflect only our best traits and highest hopes.

Each new school year is a mixture of the familiar with the new. An activity found most beneficial in the past was Band Camp, scenes from which are pictured in this opening section. Held at St. Edmunds Camp, the band rehearsed both morning and afternoon with rest periods between. Evenings were filled with more swimming, skits, and games. This year Mr. Swartzel and Mr. Lasonczyk were assisted by alumnus Jim Caldwell.

Crowded into the two weeks before school opened were a senior picnic at which Carmen Rojas, A.F.S. exchange student was introduced, and a reception for the new principal, Mr. Joseph Steele.

The library found its fourth location since being formed by Miss Hardy in 1958. Located first in the 200 building, later in the office and then back to the basement of the 200 building, much more spacious rooms were made in the 300 building. Its new quarters provided space for the junior high collection, conference rooms and work rooms, and greater space around the stacks. Its move also created summer work of packing and unpacking books, erecting new shelving, and processing new editions. Miss Hardy also spent much of the summer ordering books for the newly-formed libraries in the elementary schools. Volunteer student help aided her during August to make possible an early opening to the student body.

Greet Returning Students and Teachers.

Virtually every department of the high school had at least one student teacher during the past year. In some cases graduates returned to work with teachers they once studied under. In other cases residents of the community requested Finneytown. The University of Cincinnati and Miami University were the main sources of student teachers. Working with Mrs. Spencer in the Social Studies Department was Mrs. Martin. Observing in art classes were Nancy Heinle and Jean Brandow. Mrs. Martha Seibel taught English; Stephen Stargardt, Music; Fred Spears, Phys. Ed.; Judy Beyring, Home Ec.

Attracting the attention of more girls each year is the Junior High G.A.A. program. Soccer, volleyball, horseback riding and track are all included, led by Miss Bender with assistance from senior high girls. After officers are elected, special meetings are also planned.

Older girls have the opportunity to display their cooking talents at the class potluck dinners before football games. These are well-attended and are usually held in someone's basement playroom. In September the yearbook staff, which started on this book even before school was out the previous year, distributed the 1966 Finis. This was an eagerly awaited event, and students were soon making the rounds of classrooms, asking for teacher autographs. Working after school, the books were delivered to the homes of alumni who had reserved them.

Amy Roettele Chosen Queen of

Homecoming, 1966

Freshmen girls patiently wait for parade to start.

Queen Candidates: Amy Roettele, JoAnne Taylor, Chris Poole, Sharon Levine, Peggy Tyx and Diane Winner.

Weeks before Homecoming, all four senior high classes worked feverishly to finish their floats in time for the Homecoming parade. On Thursday, October 13, at 6:00 P.M., the procession started at Northminster Church and proceeded to the high school where a bonfire was held. A pep rally heightened spirit.

Friday night, the Wildcats tangled with the North College Hill Trojans and had a victory of 27-14. During half-time, the floats were presented and the winning sophomore float was announced. Amy Roettele was crowned Homecoming Queen by Sally Whetsel, the Queen of 1965. Other candidates included Diane Winner, Peggy Tyx, Chris Poole, Jo Ann Taylor, and Sharon Levine, all seniors. Attendants were Pam Weedman, Carol Mersfelder, and Karen Turner. From 10:30 to 12:00 after the game, the annual Homecoming Dance took place in the multi-purpose building. Music was provided by the Five Sharps.

Alumni who were lucky enough to be in town the night before the Homecoming game witnessed one of the longest parades yet staged. They also saw the ingenuity of the classes in the construction of this year's floats. "Wildcat Country" was the theme of the winning Sophomore float. "Happiness is a Dead Trojan" proclaimed the Freshman float which was constructed at Gail Bachmann's home. Countless tissues and yards of chicken wire were used in its construction on a farm trailer. An electric toaster with a Trojan rising from its slot urged the Wildcats to "Toast 'Em" and the Junior class constructed this display at the Danenhauer's house.

Also Supports School Programs

The high school was again the scene of the PTA Carnival in October, and as always it was especially well-attended by the junior high students. Rides, games and booths of all kinds, plus excellent weather, drew a record attendance.

In the evening, after the roast beef dinner, high schoolers danced to the music of the Weeds.

The annual Christmas Concert was presented on two successive evenings early in December, featuring Carol Taylor as soloist. Pep assemblies were also the order of the day as the students urged the Wildcats to victory in their basketball games. A speaker from Family Service and a Ted Bumiller Travelogue were enjoyed by the senior high students.

Even the dance tickets emphasized the holiday season, which were in the shape of miniature Christmas trees.

Refreshments were served by the chaperones-Mr. and Mrs. Deeter, class of '67 advisor, Mr. and Mrs. Dorn, Mr. and Mrs. Nell, Miss Bender and date, Mr. and Mrs. Ruck, Dr. and Mrs. Morgan.

Girls' Week 1967 took place the first week in May. On Friday night before Girls' Week, G.A.A. held a slumber party for all girls belonging to G.A.A. This one was the first held and perhaps started a new trend in Girls' Weeks. The following Monday was dress-up day in which the girls are allowed to dress up with heels and their Sunday best. Tuesday was Teacher Appreciation Day and the girls served the teachers lunch. Thursday was the annual G.A.A. Banquet. All the girls brought their mothers and each class presented a skit concerned with G.A.A. The Senior girls took the honors with their altered version of "Cinderella." Friday evening a pot luck supper was held, and Saturday night was the turn-about semi-formal dance. Marty Klein was honored Queen of G.A.A. and crowned at the dance.
